Spending freeze hits Eastern

By STUART TART
 Editor in chief

A complete spending freeze went into effect for the university Thursday as administrators continued to assess how a 3 percent across-the-board budget callback proposed by Gov. Jim Edgar will affect Eastern.

Vice President for Business Affairs Charles Colbert said Thursday the spending freeze, which he said may end Monday, is designed to allow the business office to determine how much money are in university accounts so a plan can be formulated to deal with a callback.

"Essentially, what we have done is not processing anything in the business office until after the weekend," he said.

"The only reason we're doing that is so we can see where we are," he added, explaining the university needs to know what the balances of individual line items are. "We need to know what the line items are; we need to know all of the balances."

Deans of the academic colleges received phone calls Wednesday evening from acting Vice President for Academic Affairs Barbara Hill and acting Associate Vice President for Academic Affairs Terry Weidner informing them of the freeze.

Deans in turn spent Thursday morning spreading the word to department chairs and other fiscal agents within their areas.

As of Thursday morning, however, several deans said they did not know what the budget freeze meant.

Charles Joley, dean of the College of Education, received a call from Weidner Wednesday night.

"He said, 'there is a budget freeze. There will be no spending on anything,'" Joley said.

"We're all pretty concerned here ... I've never experienced anything like this," he added.

Joley said he had no idea Thursday morning how the freeze would affect his college, and he was trying to find out how it will affect individual budget items, such as telephone

State budget cut may not hurt education

By BOB MCKEE
 Senior reporter

As it looks now, some state programs might not feel the total wrath of the $350 million across-the-board budget cut proposed by Gov. Jim Edgar — education could be one of them.

State Rep. Mike Weaver, R-Ashmore, stated Thursday that the imposed cuts before the General Assembly could possibly be made in a flexible manner, not imposing cuts where they will be hard felt.

There will not be a distinct cut across-the-board if the proposal is passed, Weaver said, simply because some programs such as senior programs cannot receive any more losses and still serve the public that depend on them.

Edgar proposed the budget cuts and a $500 million loan plan before a joint session of the state legislature Wednesday in an attempt to combat a recessionary revenue gap stemming from the national recession. The recession spurred state revenues to plummet in November and December after exceeding estimates in September and October.

"We have got some rather large bills that we are trying to catch up on," Weaver said referring to $596 million the state owes for Medicaid expenses and an additional $434 in other unpaid bills.

The State Appropriations Committee anticipates that a general 3 percent budget decrease should be adequate to sustain the state financially until fiscal year 1992 expires on June 30, Weaver said. He added that even though exact figures are not known as of yet, education programs should receive minimal cuts.

The trimming in education Weaver suggests is in the administration — a sect which has grown 15 percent over the last decade.

Weaver suggests more emphasis should be placed on "where the road meets the rubber" regarding financial support of education.

"We have to put our money in the classroom," Weaver said. "I have to believe there is some administrative cuts that could be made."

In conjunction with the budget cuts, the proposal calls for a plan to borrow $500 million.

Peace Meal program under investigation

By JAMIE RILEY
 Administration editor

The Peace Meal program is currently under investigation by Eastern's human resources department at President Stan Rives' request because of alleged "financial concerns" and "employment of relatives" within the program.

An anonymous letter was sent to several individuals on campus and to The News in November.

After receiving the letter in November, Rives told The News, "I have asked an internal auditor to look at the financial concerns expressed in the letter."

He added he has also asked Eastern's human resources department to look into charges in the letter concerning employment of relatives within the program.

The program is sponsored by the home economics department and is funded by the Older Americans Act. Peace Meal also includes funds from local and state sources to provide congregate and home-delivered meals for the elderly, according to home economics Chair Joyce Crouse, who also oversees Peace Meal.

Employees at Peace Meal were interviewed and fingerprinted by the University Police Department last week.

After the anonymous letter was sent, two employees received harassing phone calls and letters, according to Jim Pacino, assistant vice president for human resources.

Crouse said the gist of the second two letters was "we know who you are, what you're doing, and you're going to go down." Crouse said she did not know what was meant by the letter or who was targeted by the letter.

Peace Meal supervisors, including Crouse and Peace Meal Director Mike Strader, said the fingerprinting was done voluntarily in order to help the employees feel better protected against further harassment, such as the letter or phone calls. The fingerprinting was not, the supervisors said, an attempt to discover who was leaking information about Peace Meal hirings to outsiders.

Crouse said Peace Meal employees requested a meeting in which they could discuss any course of protection against harassing communication.

"It was at their request to make sure they knew what their recourse was," Crouse said.

According to Pacino, the issue of fingerprinting came up during the course of the Jan. 2 meeting.

"Apparently what happened was a member of the police department joined in (the meeting), and this police officer was giving information about phone taps," Pacino said. "Well, somehow the subject of fingerprinting came up and in this context, and ... according to Dr. Crouse, people were given the option of fingerprinting at their own discretion."

Pacino said that after the fingerprinting had been done, he received a telephone call from a Peace Meal employee who was upset with the fingerprinting.

"I got a telephone call from someone at Peace Meal who wouldn't identify herself and basically indicated she was really upset with it and was really kind of distressed," Pacino said.

"The feeling I got from the employee was that there was a pressure applied; that if you didn't do this, if you didn't go along, you were implicated," he said.

Pacino said that although the practice of fingerprinting employees is "unusual," it is not illegal if done with the permission of the employee.

Crouse said any employee who wanted to be interviewed was taken behind closed doors at the University Police station and fingerprinted there.

She also said that the police officer who attended the meeting told employees at least three times that any fingerprinting would be done on a voluntary basis.

"They were told at least three times that any fingerprinting and phone tapping would be done at the individual's request," Crouse said.

"The employee's perspective (who called Pacino) was that (the fingerprinting) was a pressure on her. There was not an attempt to put any pressure on," said Pacino, who added that in his investigation he learned the meeting and eventual fingerprinting were attempts by the Peace Meal supervisors to provide a support mechanism.

"It was in the context of explaining what people could do legally," he said.

and travel, the student teaching program — which has already begun this semester — and purchases that have already been requested.

"The order was for a complete budget freeze," he said. "We don't know what that means."

Vaughn Jaenike, dean of the College of Fine Arts, said he thought the freeze might be a move to allow the university to determine what money is in university accounts.

"My assumption is that somehow it is helpful to get the business office cleared, to know what is in the accounts," he said.

Jaenike said his college already has begun preparing for a budget callback.

"I told our people some time ago that I thought there was a likelihood of as much as a 10 percent recession," he said. "If it's a 3 percent recession, we've had time to think about it and to adjust our planned spending accordingly."

The College of Fine Arts has reduced the size of its alumni publication and has reduced the scope of its mailing, has limited use of its copy machine and will issue one, rather than two, calendars of events for the spring semester, according to Jaenike.

He said Eastern could absorb a 3 percent budget callback, but pointed out that some areas of the budget that normally would be cut to do it already have been cut.

The Fine Arts college's equipment budget, for example, dropped from $50,000 to $600 in a year, and the college only received the $600 because a printer broke down early in the fiscal year, he said.

Ted Ivarie, dean of the Lumpkin College of Business, approved of the university's action in calling for the freeze.

"I think it's an appropriate action to take at this time while we are uncertain about the budget situation," he said.

"I think it will keep as many options open as possible to respond to a budget recession," he explained. "I think curtailing spending is the best way to do that."

Ivarie said he believes Eastern will be asked to return funds to the state, pointing out that Edgar is adamant about budget cuts but has indicated he is open to options other than an across-the-board cut.

"To predict what the legislature will do is not a particularly useful exercise," he said. "My position is let's wait and see."

Jon Laible, dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, called the spending freeze a "reasonable reaction to the governor's talk."

"My interpretation is that this is ... an effort to make sure the university retains funds in case we have to give some back," he said. "It is likely that, in one form or another, we will have to give some back."

Laible added this is "the largest potential" callback of funds he has ever experienced.

"I think it's a direct reflection of the economic health of the state and the nation," he said.

Jaenike said he expects the universities' budget problems to increase during the next several years.

"I think for the next several years, we're going to see this and probably more," he said. "The chair of the IBHE recently said this (university budgeting) is not business as usual, but an entirely new way of handling higher education."

Jaenike added Illinois universities are not as bad off as those of some other states.

A colleague of Jaenike's told him that a state university in California recently had to cut not only 10 percent of its operating budget, but 10 percent of its personnel as well. Currently, that university is looking at plans to make additional cuts of 10 or 15 percent, he said.

"What we're facing is a drop in the bucket compared to other states," Jaenike said. "That doesn't make it right. But if there is a recession, there is certainly a recession in higher education, too."

Colbert said if there is a budget callback, the university may be allowed to make the 3 percent in cuts from the areas of the budget it chooses or it may be required to make a 3 percent cut from each line item.

"If we go 3 percent by line item, it could be pretty tough," he said.

Regardless, Colbert said the callback would require "serious cuts."

"It's going to be tough," he said. "We'll do what we have to do; nothing is sacred when we get started."

which Edgar attests will be paid back by Oct. 1, 1992.

The Republican House Caucus met with state Budget Director Joan Walters Thursday morning to discuss the short term borrowing effort and considered the issuance of bonds, Weaver said.

One issue that splits legislators is the question of raising taxes, something that Edgar spoke against in his address Wednesday. "We simply must resist going back to our taxpayers again and again," Edgar said in his address.

Democrats have spoken out in favor of a tax hike, but GOP legislators have opposed it because of the financial pressure the hike would impose on taxpayers.

"It is a bad time to ask people for more money," Weaver said. "It is a good time to make budget cuts, and an opportune time to scale down government."

The General Assembly have scheduled hearings Monday through Wednesday to ponder the issues before them, and it is anticipated that a decision should be made late next week.

'Poor performance' key to vote against Gerber

By ELLIOTT PEPPERS
Student government editor

Student Senate members said Thursday that a failure to perform duties was the reason Brett Gerber was rejected Wednesday night as chief of staff.

Gerber was removed as chief of staff by a 13 to 9 vote by the Student Senate.

"From personal experience, Brett hasn't been doing his job," said senate member Curtiss Cline. "The (Student Senate) bylaws state certain duties that have to be fulfilled (by the chief of staff), and they weren't being fulfilled."

Gerber said the reason he was singled out and removed as chief of staff was because of former speaker Blake Wood's supporters who knew Gerber supported new speaker of the senate Tony Wielt.

"I think it was obvious that some folks were unhappy with the election and the situation with Blake," Gerber said.

On Dec. 4 an election for speaker of the senate was held. During the election, three senate members attempted to vote by absentee ballot. Two of the three - Shirley Von Bokel and Gail Walker - were told by Martha

New advisory board to assist handicapped

By BOBBY SMITH
Staff writer

A new advisory board to assist disabled students and faculty on campus is scheduled to begin this semester after the Student Senate passed a bill to approve the board at its Wednesday night meeting.

The bill, which was submitted by the Joint Student Senate Faculty Senate Relations Committee, will form a "Disabled Persons Advisory Board."

"The board will deal with any and all issues affecting disabled members of the campus community and work on ways to assist these people with any problems they may have," the bill stated.

"This university does not

adhere to the needs of the disabled," said senate member Dave Kinsey. Kinsey said Eastern's size is well suited for the needs of the disabled and the university should recruit more disabled individuals.

In other action, the senate approved the constitution for the United Student Union for Racial Equality.

"The senate is responsible for making sure that all requirements are met before a group can be recognized," said Executive Vice President Kristy Koch.

She added that she does not see any problems with the group meeting the additional criteria needed for the organization to become a recognized student organization.

The senate also discussed what its role is in the search and selection of a new Eastern president.

"Our job is to make sure that the students are represented in the search for the new president," said Student Body President Martha Price. "We want to make sure that the students' views are heard and that the new president is as concerned with the students' views as President Rives has been in the past."

issue was due to a "leak" in the confidential vote for speaker of the senate. The confidential vote became public knowledge that Wood lost by one ballot - 14 to 13.

However, several senate members insist Gerber's performance was the reason he was removed as chief of staff and not the absentee ballot controversy with the speaker election.

"I feel a lot of times he (Gerber) fulfills some of his duties, but when he does he does them slowly," Bokel said. "Also, last semester he was campaigning for internal positions and according to our bylaw, (executive members) aren't allowed that," she added.

"As a committee chair, I was not impressed with his (Gerber's) performance," said senate member Jill Pfeiffer. "My (no) vote was no reflection of the deal with the speaker election; I just think we can find a better person."

However, even with opposition to him returning as chief of staff, Gerber said he remains confident he will be reappointed when the five senate members who were absent Wednesday are in attendance next week.

be accepted.

"I told him I would check on it," she added.

"(The vote against Gerber) has nothing to do with the speaker election," Cline said. "I voted 'no' because I felt it was best for the students."

Concerning the acceptance of an absentee ballot, Price said senate bylaws were consulted but nothing was found so "Robert's Rules of Order" were used and, consequently, the "no" decision was made.

Milberg said Thursday he did want to comment on the situation further but that the senate article which ran in the Daily Eastern News Wednesday was an accurate account of the controversial election.

According to senate member Shelly White, the reason the situation concerning the acceptance of Kirk's ballot became an

Ethics statement to be released ...

By ELLIOTT PEPPERS
Student government editor

An ethics statement for university staff will be released Friday for all university employees to review.

The ethics statement, which will be attached to the University Newsletter, is the third and final statement drafted by an ethics committee formed in February 1991, by President Stan Rives, said Robert Barger, professor of education and chair of the ethics committee.

"The job of our committee is done," Barger said. "This time any comments on the final draft will go directly to the President's Council."

The ethics committee held a three-session open hearing on the ethics statement last semester to receive comments from university employees. As a result of the sessions, the statement was substantially revised and a final draft was submitted to the President's Council on Nov. 18, Barger said.

However, the ethics statement

- which was previously entitled an ethics code - did not reach the President's Council without opposition. The committee received firm opposition to the statement from faculty, staff and the University Professionals of Illinois, the union that represents Eastern's faculty.

The Faculty Senate and the UPI were at arms against the statement because both groups said ethics are already covered in the UPI's contract with Eastern's faculty.

"Those items (in the ethics proposal) that are clearly related to the University Professionals of Illinois' contract agreement, we oppose," said Jayne Ozier, former UPI president, after the first open session on the ethics statement. "Our contract clearly specifies what our obligations are and how we will be evaluated."

"I agree with the UPI's position," Laurent Gosselin, Faculty Senate member and now Eastern's UPI president, said after the first open session. "Several sections in the plan are already covered in our union contract."

Gosselin said the UPI's position hasn't changed. "The union's position has been that the statement of ethical standards is unnecessary because those kinds of things are already covered through the (UPI) contract," he said.

In response to the UPI's continual objection, Barger said it is not for him to comment on now, but rather the issue is up to the President's Council.

"As a union member and a faculty member, my difficulty with the statement is the procedure by which it was developed. I would hate to see the President's Council approve the statement without at least it being taken to the whole faculty and staff for acceptance by vote," he added.

"It (the ethics statement) is unnecessary and superfluous ... I would not like to see it in place as an addition to the university's internal governing policies," Gosselin added.

...and new UPI president opposes it

By RICHARD CIBELLI
Staff writer

Eastern home economics professor Laurent Gosselin has been elected the new University Professionals of Illinois' Eastern chapter president to succeed previous chapter president Jayne Ozier.

Gosselin, who has been at Eastern since 1981, was elected to his position in December, but says he was not officially told of his two-year term appointment until recently.

With his new appointment, Gosselin has submitted his resignation as a member of Eastern's Faculty Senate because he "feared" he would not be able to fulfill a second elected position due to time constraints.

One of Gosselin's goals is to "maintain the health of the union."

Also, a proposed ethics code for university employees is one goal Gosselin and other members of the union feel strongly about, Gosselin said.

He said he will be receiving a copy of the final proposal from President Stan Rives, but he believes such a code is not necessary, adding that much of the language contained in the statement already exists in UPI's faculty contract.

Gosselin said he "particularly has problems with the way that this ethical statement was generated.

"It might not be a bad idea to have one (ethics code) for the university staff, but only if it were organized to include all of the elements of the university," Gosselin said.

Rives' July resignation also is of importance to the union, Gosselin said, adding that he will need to closely monitor a series of selection procedures for the new president and insure that the process is conducted in an appropriate manner.

Gosselin said he looks forward to the selection of a new university president who will bring new ideas and energy to Eastern.

State cutbacks should not be felt by students

On Wednesday Gov. Jim Edgar announced that he would suggest to the state legislature an across-the-board 3 percent state funds callback.

And the university temporarily froze all of its spending Thursday so that the business office can see how much money is left in different areas of the budget and where cuts could be made.

Edgar told the General Assembly that the callback is necessary "because our revenues have been ravaged by a national recession beyond our control; we must bite the bullet again, even harder because this budget must be put back in balance quickly."

Editorial

One might wonder how Eastern would be affected by a loss of 3 percent of its appropriated funds, especially considering the university's fiscal year '92 budget of $52.25 million represented only a 0.2 percent increase over the previous year's budget, despite a 5 percent tuition increase.

In the Jan. 9 edition of The News, it was reported that an across-the-board cutback of 3 percent would mean a cut of almost $1.57 million for Eastern, which would reduce the university's already low appropriated funds to $50.6 million.

On Wednesday BOG spokeswoman Michelle Brazell said that the board is planning on the full 3 percent callback and now "the question is how."

Education obviously would not suffer the cuts alone. Cuts would come from all areas of the budget for state agencies, and as well as universities, senior citizen programs would be cut as well.

We believe the universities have already contributed significantly to Gov. Edgar's downsizing of state government. Along with a low state appropriation this year and a 1 percent callback of funds one year ago, higher education has watched its size of the state budget shrink for 15 years.

Rep. Mike Weaver, R-Ashmore, has developed a proposal to eliminate the Board of Governors and the Board of Regents and to have universities report directly to the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

We agree with Weaver in principle, and we believe further cuts from higher education should be taken out of administrative costs.

TODAY'S QUOTE

If they want to know where we're going to cut and then approve those cuts, they might as well make those cuts themselves

Rives not the only president to face controversy

If anything can be said about Eastern President Stan Rives, it is that he was a groundbreaker, a man of firsts, an innovator.

Rives attempted to make Eastern "Public Ivy," and helped keep the calm during the rare, threat of a potential teachers strike.

But, the innovations that his nine-year term will be most remembered for will be attached to names like Vic Robeson, Janet Francis-Larabee and Verna Armstrong.

Now add to that, the factor that Rives will be the first president to step down in a controversial fashion in the 96-year, six-president history of the university.

After serving in the president's position for the last nine years, Rives announced his July 31 retirement is because of personal reasons. "I always said that I would serve as president only as long as it was enjoyable," Rives told the press on Dec. 30. "I cannot say this past year has been enjoyable."

Rives, who will hand in his resignation at the Jan. 16 Board of Governors meeting, has admitted to differences between himself and BOG Chancellor Thomas Layzell. However, Rives claims his choice to retire was a "personal decision" and was not influenced by either controversy or differences in philosophy.

Past university leaders have resigned from the position. However no Eastern president has left directly or indirectly because of conflicts or controversy, records from The Daily Eastern News show. Of the five previous presidents, three resigned, one retired and another - Eastern's first President Livingston C. Lord - died while still holding the position.

Just how bad was Stan Rives as compared to the other presidents? To take a look, here are the past five presidents, and how they took their exit from the university they loved.

• Dan Marvin, the Eastern president who preceded ed Rives from 1976 to 1982, resigned to take the position of bank president at the First National Bank of Mattoon.

• Gilbert Fite, president from 1971 to 1976 stepped down after being offered a professorship of history at the University of Georgia.

• Quincy Doudna, president from 1956 to 1971 and the only other president to retire, closed up shop and moved to Florida.

• Robert Guy Buzzard, Eastern's second president, stepped down after holding the job from 1933 to 1956, News reports stated. The resignation of Buzzard was apparently the first phase of a gradual retirement, as he went on to teach two years at both Southern Illinois University in Carbondale and Arizona University before ending his education career.

• Lord, who stayed at the helm of Eastern from 1899 to 1933, died due to bronchitis and other complications after being ill for 10 days.

There were various scandals under some of the past presidents. The Daily Eastern News uncovered building codes violations under Doudna in 1966. As a result of the report, Doudna fired both the editor and chief and the adviser of the News. Although not the most important, the most interesting was when Fite banned a pornographic film from being shown on campus.

Unfortunately, not even the antics of Fite or the Watergate-like actions of Doudna can outdue Stan Rives. The most controversies of any administration were uncovered during the Rives administration: Verna Armstrong's nepotism, the alleged failure to meet affirmative action guidelines and a sexual harassment case filed by Janet Francis-Larabee put our president at the top of the heap.

To add to the shame, all of these controversies erupted in a one-year period. Yet another first.

So farewell, President Rives, your attempts at public Ivy were valiant. But in the end, the first you didn't want to say, dragged you down in the end.

Your turn

Student asks why Eastern has a four point grade system

Dear editor:

I would like to ask why a four point grade system is used on tabulating a GPA. In this system, a 71 percent equals a 79 percent, and an 81 percent equals an 89 percent and so on. It seems to me this removes the incentive for students to try for high A's, high B's, ect. Why isn't the percentage we earn in class directly translated into our GPA? If a student has a 71 percent, let's say, and tried all semester to raise his/her grade to a "B" but never crossed the imaginary 80 percent level, his/her efforts have not been rewarded. Most students will agree that their efforts have been wasted.

I have taken courses where my 85 percent still earned me a "C."

I have only received a couple of "C's" during my enrollment at Eastern, but a 2.0 seriously affects a "B" average in fact, I could get 100 "B's" and 1 "C" and I would still have a "C" average. That is ridiculous.

Using percentages, the students would receive a much more accurate reflection of their grades. The average of an 86 percent (B) and a 78 percent (C) would still be a 82 percent, making it a "B" on the four point system. It would be a "C" average (3.0 and 2.0) divided by 2 equals 2.5 of "C." The point system is inaccurate.

Chi's blaze leaves $1,000 in damages

By CHRIS SUNDHEIM
City editor

Chi's bar received less than $1,000 in damage in a Saturday evening blaze that also damaged a second-story student apartment and Jimmy John's, according to Mike Bickers, owner of the building at 1415 Fourth St.

Bickers said Chi's sustained no structural damage in the fire and that most damage was done by smoke.

He said the student apartment above the bar is being renovated and the tenants will move back in "very shortly."

Bickers added that most of the interior of Chi's was untouched by the fire.

"There were no interior furnishings damaged," Bickers said. "All the equipment is okay."

Bickers said he doesn't know what caused the fire and added that he isn't even sure the investigation is still underway.

"As far as I know, (the cause) still hasn't been determined," he said.

The Charleston Fire Department is continuing to investigate the cause of the fire.

Charleston Fire Chief Tom Watson said the department is waiting for another engineering assessment before releasing an official cause.

"The hold-up is that we're waiting on an electrical engineer," Watson said.

He added the engineer was supposed to examine the damaged bar Thursday but as of 4 p.m. had not arrived.

Winola Grant, general manager of Jimmy John's sandwich shop at 1417 Fourth St., said her business plans to reopen on Friday pending approval from the public health department.

Grant declined to give a dollar estimate on the damage her store received in the blaze.

She did say, however, that much of the interior has had to be replaced.

"I can tell you it's just like opening up a new store," Grant said.

Firefighters were rushed to the scene of Chi's after a fire broke out about 7:30 p.m. Saturday. The blaze was extinguished about 10:30 p.m.

Fall academic warning figures released

By CHRIS SEPER
Campus editor

Nearly 10 percent — 939 students — of Eastern's approximately 10,000 students have either had an academic warning, been on academic probation or have been expelled from the university after the fall 1991 semester, according to figures from the records office.

After the fall semester 558 students were placed on warning, 209 on probation and 172 have been dismissed.

"About 5 percent of the student body is on something," said Glenn Williams, vice president of student affairs. "Just by virtue of the way things operate, the further down the line you go in school, the less chance people have to get on warning, probation or drop. The ones that survive two years or so are going to be better students."

According to the 1990-91 Eastern Illinois Undergraduate Catalog, academic warning is assessed to any student whose cumulative grade-point average falls below 2.00. Probation is given to students after they have been on academic warning for a term and their average is still below a 2.00, the catalog said.

Dismissal from the university occurs if, at the end of any grading period, a student's GPA is 0.00 and the cumulative average is below 2.00, according to the catalog. Release from the university can also occur if a student on academic probation fails to make satisfactory progress toward good academic standing.

Students must achieve a GPA of 2.00 or higher to be considered to make improving progress.

"I think many people go on warning on their first term here," said John Conley, registrar at the records office. "They come in not realizing how hard it is to make a 2.0 (grade-point average). Warning is going to be higher (in the fall semesters than the spring). I see fall (semesters) as the bigger time (for problems)."

The 1990 fall semester had 586 students on warning, 244 on probation and 222 dismissals. A shift in where the majority of students are can be seen in the 1991 spring semester, as 223 students were on warning, 380 went on probation and 154 were dismissed.

Although there was no breakdown by class, Williams said that for the most part freshmen are the majority of students on academic probation. He did say however it isn't always the stereotypical "too much partying" that trips up the first-time students.

"It's a complex thing," Williams said. "You have to look at this on an individual basis. So many things bear on people that may or may not be strictly academic."

Family problems, major life changes, curriculum shifts by the university, discipline difficulties and problems in adjustment are some of the reasons why freshmen and sophomores are more likely to make the warning and probation list than juniors and seniors.

In many cases students are placed on academic probation in their junior and senior years, according to Conley. Many of those students have already been on academic warning once and then slip later in their academic career, Conley said.

Academic reinstatement after dismissal comes in several different phases, Williams said. All students are readmitted without question after flunking out once. If students have flunked out of the university twice and want readmission they must go in front a Review Committee and be allowed to reenter.

"For people that apply a third time, in my 22 years, you could probably count on your toes and fingers and get the number of people we admit," Williams said. "You've been admitted once, twice and a third time and now you want to be admitted for the fourth time? You have to be something startling and beyond control to get back in."

New group working for change in program

By SUSAN KIEL
Staff writer

The United Student Union is on its way to becoming a recognized student organization since the group's constitution was approved by the Student Senate Wednesday.

The group is now working toward changing policies in Eastern's Minority Admittance Program, according to Matt Edwards, president and founder of the group.

"We want a change made in the program to eliminate conditional admittance so that the program is open to any student who is educationally or economically disadvantaged without regard to race," Edwards said.

He said the Minority Admittance Program represents a double standard and promotes reverse discrimination.

"I am aware of their position," said Johnetta Jones, director of the Minority Admittance Program. "While I understand their position, I don't necessarily agree with it."

"The Illinois Higher Board (of Education) and the university have

"I see no reason why the students wouldn't support this."

Matt Edwards
USU president

emphasized their desire to make the state schools more culturally diverse. The MAP program was set up to try and accomplish that goal," Jones added.

Jones also pointed out that modifying the Minority Admittance Program would cost the university money — money she believes the university doesn't have.

"It seems that realistically we simply cannot do what they want done. We just don't have enough dollars," Jones said.

The group presented a written proposal regarding the changes it wants to make to the Minority Admittance Program to Ken Sutton, chair of the Council on Academic Affairs.

"The United Student Union's proposal has been distributed to all of the members of the council, but no action has been taken yet," Sutton said.

He said before a motion is made by a member, there will be much discussion among the council members regarding the organization's proposal. Sutton also said the issue of finance will be an important aspect of the council's decision.

"It will be very difficult to divorce the financial aspect from the issue," Sutton said.

Edwards said money will play a large part in the decision, but he doesn't think the university is lacking in funds.

"It seems to me they could come up with the money if they really wanted to," he said.

Edwards also said the support of the student body will play a large part in the council's decision.

"I think the student body can play a large part in influencing the council's decision. I see no reason why the students wouldn't support this," he said.

Sigma Pi House burglarized

By JENNIFER MILLER and CHRIS SEPER
Staff writer

A residential burglary occurred at the Sigma Pi Fraternity House sometime between Sunday and Thursday, according to police reports.

Chapter President Paul Snyder reported that a wine flask containing $50 in coins was missing from his room, along with a key chain with about 20 keys.

Police Blotter

Snyder reported that when he left the house Dec. 29 all the doors were locked, but when he returned Jan. 2 they were all unlocked. He told police that, other than himself, only Chapter Director Eli Sidwell and House Mother Genevieve Slavin have keys to all the doors.

Police reports said Snyder contacted Sidwell, and he had not been in the house, and Slavin is elderly and can't walk upstairs.

There are no suspects in the case.

In other items among Charleston and University Police Department reports include:

- Criminal damage to state-supported property was reported at 12:43 a.m. Wednesday at Stevenson Hall when a 4 foot by 12 foot lobby window was broken after an argument and fight, reports said.

There are suspects in the case.

Auditions will be held this weekend for play

By CASSIE SIMPSON
Activities editor

The Charleston Community Theater will hold open auditions for its next play, "Crimes of the Heart," Saturday from 2 to 5 p.m. and Sunday from 6 to 9 p.m.

The auditions for the comedy will be held in the Banquet Room of What's Cookin' restaurant, 409 7th St.

Director Tom Schnarre said the play, written by Beth Henley, was initially performed in 1980 on Broadway and was made into a 1988 movie starring Sissie Spacek, Jessica Lange and Diane Keaton.

There are six character roles to be filled, four women and two men, he added.

"It's set in a small Mississippi town," Schnarre said. "The McGrath sisters are reunited because the youngest sister, Babe, just shot her senator husband in the stomach."

"They have a scandal-ridden past," Schnarre said of the sisters.

The comedy will be performed in the Tarble Arts Center Feb. 27, 28 and 29 at 8 p.m. and March 1 at 2 p.m.

Schnarre also noted that he needs people for behind-the-scenes work. "We always need people interested in technical work, building sets and costumes," he said.

All-you-can-eat breakfast set for Saturday

The Junior Youth Fellowship at the First Christian Church will sponsor an all-you-can-eat pancake and sausage breakfast Jan. 11.

Part of the proceeds from the breakfast will go to support one educational and four music scholarships at Eastern.

The pancake breakfast, which will begin at 8 a.m. and last until 2:30 p.m., costs $3 for adults, including university students, and $1.50 for children ages 6 through 12. Children under age 6 can eat free.

In addition to the scholarships, proceeds will go to support youth programs in the Charleston area, such as the "Fifth Quarter Program" for high school students, according to youth fellowship adviser Steve Ferguson.

Money from past pancake breakfasts has been used for the medical needs of local families and educational trips to St. Louis.

The First Christian Church is located at Fourth and Jackson avenues.

Alumni recital to be held Sunday in Dvorak Hall

By STEVE LYSAKER
Staff writer

Former Eastern music student Anne Timblin-Allen will take the spotlight for an alumni recital at 3 p.m. Sunday in Dvorak Concert Hall.

Allen, who graduated in 1979 with a Master of the Arts degree in vocal performance, was also a finalist in the Metropolitan Opera auditions of 1977, according to Robert Timblin, her father.

Sunday's recital will include such pieces as "La Belle Aus Bois Dormant" by Debussy, "Waft Her, Angels" by Handel, and "Vogel" by Schubert.

The recital will also include accompaniment by pianist Alan Aulabaugh and several cellists from the EIU-Community Orchestra, Timblin said.

"(Allen) is a very good singer, and it should be a very fine performance," said Donald Tracy of the Eastern music department, who is also one of the cellists to accompany Allen this Sunday.

After a two year hiatus, the three- man acoustical jam is back in action

When Rob Westcott, Tom Epperson and Terry Davis parted ways in 1989, Epperson thought he – as well as their fans – had seen the professional end of a great musical trio.

"I never thought we'd get back together again," Epperson said. "It was like a marriage – you kinda get tired with each other. I think we were kinda ready for a change."

"I was juggling a bunch of balls at that time," added Epperson, who is a graphic arts instructor and boys and girls tennis coach at Mattoon High School. "We were often playing three nights a week and we got stagnant. I think what I needed was a little break."

Yet that changed last July, when Westcott, Epperson and Davis decided to play a one-time-only gig at the Clarion Inn in Deer Creek.

"After the job (at Deer Creek) was over, we kinda looked at each other and said 'this feels too good to let go,'" Epperson said. "I think we needed to go out there and test the waters to see what's out there."

On Saturday evening, Westcott, Epperson and Davis will bring more than a decade of their trademark acoustic pleasures and renowned harmonies to Marty's, 1666 Fourth Street, for their third appearance at the bar since the band re-formed in July. The show, which is scheduled to start at 9 p.m., costs $2.

The hybrid of Westcott, Epperson and Davis started in 1977, when lead guitarist Westcott – who is the director for the center of business and industry at Lakeland College – and rhythm guitarist Epperson got together and performed as a duo under the moniker Westcott and Epperson.

A few years later, they found the missing link: bassist Davis, who is the owner of Towne Square Jewlers, 500 Sixth Street. Davis had a one-shot affair with the pop charts in the early 70's when he played bass on Maureen McGovern's "There's Got To Be A Morning After," the theme song to the film "The Poseidon Adventure."

... talk is cheap

JASON WINDERS

In an exclusive Talk is Cheap photo taken in an unknown location Elvis hands Shellberg the keys to Old Main.

Bribes lead to Shellberg presidency

Dear Talk Is Cheap Lover:

To serve a portion of their work furlough program, Tim, Rich and Jason were assigned to clean the office of Stan Rives during the holiday break. What transpired through a haze of nervousness-enhanced confusion was indeed incredible. Tim, Rich and Jason stumbled upon the most important collection of papers since the Dead Sea Scrolls or the lyrics of Golden Earring's "Radar Love"... a written transcript of a conversation between myself and Stan just six short months ago (thus proving I am still alive). Through a twist of fate, luck, and a series of highly inflated bribes (mostly in the form of hookers and gin), Tim becomes the new president of Eastern. A portion of the transcripts that lead to Tim's fate.

Take care of business,

ELVIS

"The King"

Compiled by Matt Johnson

Stan: Do you have an opening at Graceland, King? It kind of looks that I will be in need of some employment come August.

Elvis: Well, Stan, you always have a home with the King.

Stan: Thanks, King, you're smurf-a-licious.

Elvis: No problem, baby...[sounds of munching and snacking on Elvis' end of the phone]...no problem at all.

Stan: One more thing King...those three guys at the Verge, that Shellberg dork, that J.A. guy and the cartoon-boy which of them should take over for me...

Elvis: They're as good as in. It's either them or Lindy Infante.

Stan: Excellent.

Elvis: J.A. is a good guy overall but ever since he lost his job of Darren on "Bewitched," he is just a different man. All he ever does now is walk around the newsroom without his pants saying, "I'm Ted Kennedy. I'm Ted Kennedy."

Stan: What about Rich?

Elvis: Like J.A. he is a good guy but ever since he was dumped by Winona Ryder in December, all he ever does is wander from gas station to gas station asking late night employees, "Got any logrollin' man?" I like Tim for the job.

Stan: So be it. I guess he is the best choice because Tim did win the swimsuit portion of the 1991 Wal-Mart/Johnson Beans 'n Weenies/Dan Block Memorial All-Beefcake Review so I think he would fit in best.

Elvis: So be it. In my day, I looked pretty darn fine in a pair of speedos.

Editor's Note: The above was in honor of all that is good about our strong and mighty nation, children playing, people laughing, church bells ringing, Abe Vigoda's acting, and Elvis Presley. We here at Talk is Cheap all the best to Stan and as for the King...well big guy, here's another peanut-butter-banana sandwich on our account. Back next week with Tim and Rich presenting their newest film based on the life of J.A. Winders and his year spent with animals in the wild...Poodles in the Mist.

VIDEO

Richards, Wino's rock raw live at the Palladium

Keith Richards and the X-Pensive Winos
"Live at the L.A. Palladium"
Virgin video

By J.A. WINDERS

Rock and roll.

It's gritty. It's dirty. It's raw. And since the early 1960's, it's personified by Keith Richards.

Keith reaffirms himself as the grand champion of true rock music with his current live concert, "rockumentary" style video release "Live at the L.A. Palladium."

Unlike "Get Back," Paul McCartney's self-glorifying offering, Keith packs his video only with his natural hard-driving riffs and genuine feel for how music should truly be presented - accent on the music and none on the flash.

The video parallels the new album of the same title, and documents the powerful concert presentations of all songs included on that audio release. In addition to the concert footage, recorded simply by a crew of three cameras, the video also offers a limited look at the band in their natural habitat on the road.

Guitarist/vocalist Waddy Wachtel and drummer Steve Jordan turn in their usual stellar work and provide in themselves a nice sideshow to the Richards main event.

Highlights include a rendition of the Rolling Stones' "Happy" from Exile on Main Street, which surpasses any recorded version of the Stones.

"Live at the L.A. Palladium" shows the X-pensive Winos not just as Keith's "other band," but as a single solid working unit which can now exist and survive on its own under its own reputation, and not on the coattails of the Rolling Stones.

Westcott

"Rob (Westcott) and I heard there was a good bass player in town," Epperson said. "We looked him up and stole him from another band."

The band immediately found a niche throughout central Illinois with what Epperson describes as their "pure acoustic sound." Their versions of songs originally written by such acts as America, Crosby, Stills and Nash, Restless Heart and the Eagles, are among the highlights of a Westcott, Epperson and Davis set.

"America has a pure acoustic sound, as does Crosby Stills and Nash," Epperson said. "We enjoy playing those (songs)."

Yet Epperson says the band isn't keeping their feet in the '70's this time around.

"We've got a song by Extreme ("Hole Hearted") in our set now," he said, "and one of our goals is to start doing original material (in our sets)."

"I hope all of us would (contribute to the songwriting) a little bit," he added.

Nor is the band playing solely to the confines of Charleston and Mattoon. Even though they aren't playing three nights a week like they used to, Epperson said Westcott, Epperson and Davis is branching out more now than ever before.

"We're playing Springfield now, we're playing Decatur now," he said.

"We're not just saturating the area."

And according to Epperson, the timing has been right for broadening their regional base, thanks to the growing popularity of acoustic music.

"A lot of the younger people (in the audience) have enthusiastically responded (to our shows)," he said. "A lot of my high school students are listening to acoustic stuff as well, like Led Zeppelin acoustic. We're just in the right place at the right time, I guess."

"Since we've been back together, we haven't played an empty house," he added. "We played at The Office in Champaign (Tuesday evening). The last time we played there, there were about 50 people in the crowd. Last (Tuesday) night, there were about 100 people."

Another highlight of a Westcott, Epperson and Davis gig is their brand of humor, which is shown between songs. A brand of humor which, according to Epperson, comes from the audience's enthusiasm for music.

"The kids (in the audience) are laughing and we get a good crowd," Epperson said. "We tease each other (on stage), and we tease the crowd. We got good ingredients. We don't want to be serious musicians, we do want to be fun."

"If we quit having fun," Epperson added, "we'll quit."

Swimmers dive back into the tank

MATT MAHARG
Staff writer

Eastern's men's and women's swimming teams are back in action for the first time since Nov. when they travel to the University of Evansville Monday for a 1 p.m. matchup with the Aces.

The women currently have a 5-1 record, while the men's team stands at 2-4.

"The women's team has very good balance throughout the roster and each poses as a solid swimmer," head coach Ray Padovan said. "They need some work, but some of that is due to experience."

Padovan added that while each meet has certain NCAA rules and guidelines, those could be modified a little provided each coach agreed with the changes.

"This next meet against Evansville will be a bigger meet than usual with longer races and a few more events," said Padovan, who is in his 26th year as head coach.

One of the bright spots this year for the girls' team is the fact that they won their own invitational in early November. People have expressed interest in joining his teams.

"Ideally, I would like to have 20 members on each team," he said. "As it stands now, we have 21 women and 17 men."

Although there is no limit to the roster and he has never had to cut anybody, Padovan explained that he would be willing to give anyone a tryout, but their speed would be the determining factor as to whether they were good enough to make the squad.

In terms of team goals for the season, or reaching a certain number of wins, Padovan is not a believer in those type of goals.

"We try to look at swimming as more of an individual sport," Padovan said. "Goals are met when individuals improve in meets and register better times."

Wrestlers host Northern Illinois

The Eastern wrestling team will host its first home meet of the season 2pm Sunday against Northern Illinois in Lantz Gym.

The Panthers started the season back on Nov. 23 with the St. Louis Open. From there it was to the Madison, Wis. for the West Northern Open and then to Las Vegas, Nev., for the Las Vegas Invitational. Eastern then traveled to Evanston for the Midlands Championships before starting the dual meet season in Normal at the Illinois State Redbird Duals last Tuesday.

The 'Road Warriors' will go into Sunday's home contest with a 3-1 dual meet record after taking third place at ISU. The three wins matches the total the team recorded all of the last year.

A young Huskie team enters with a 1-4 mark in duals and will put up to five freshman and three sophomores on the mat Sunday.

"We haven't matched up with them this year," Panther head coach Ralph McCausland said.

"I'm sure they are scrappers."

Sophomore Shannon Gregory is 8-5 for Northern at 118 and sophomore Bill Walsh is 9-4 at 134. The only other wrestler with a winning record certain for Sunday's meet is 177 pound freshman Courtney Pitter who is 10-5.

Northern may be without its most successful wrestler. Freshman James Spillman, who wrestles at 150 pounds, has been ill with the flu and is questionable for Sunday's meet with the Panthers. Spillman is 11-5 this season and would be replaced by junior Jim Gussman who checks in with a 1-8 record into the meet.

Coincidentally, the 150 weight class is up in the air for Eastern as well. Senior co-captain Dave Marlow (13-6), who normally wrestles at 142, moved up to 150 Tuesday at the Redbird Duals and Gino Fiorvanti took his place at 142. As of Thursday afternoon, McCausland was still undecided as to where Marlow would wrestle.

Senior Mike Layne will have his hands full with Northern's T.C.

Dantzler. Dantzler is 2-2 this season after missing part of the season playing running back for the Huskie football team. Last season Dantzler was Northern's only NCAA qualifier, placing first in the NCAA West Regional.

Eastern is riding high following its third place finish at ISU. According to 167-pound senior Bob Johnson, the teams attitude is good.

"We are coming together as a team," Johnson said. "The enthusiasm on the team is a lot higher."

Johnson is 6-6 this season and all six wins have been by pinfall. At ISU, Johnson went 3-1 and in doing so surpassed the 50-win mark for his career and now has a career record of 52-35-2.

"I hope (the win total) keeps going up," Johnson said.

Despite finishing third at ISU, McCausland said that his Panthers looked sluggish. He hopes that will not be the case come Sunday.

"It's just a matter of letting the body catch up," McCausland stated.

Conference. Drake is coming off a 74-47 loss to Southern Illinois University-Carbondale.

Although the Lady Panthers won their first Gateway contest, Hilke is hoping her team can step up another notch when it battles Drake.

"It wasn't easy and it wasn't pretty, but a win is a win and we needed a confidence break," Hilke said. "We know what we can do. We know Drake is a little more competitive right now than Northern Iowa and we are going to have to play a ton better to win."

Northern Iowa's press.

"I thought Nicky Polka did a good job the majority of the game facing constant pressure. We could not have done that last year. We did not have a ball handler capable of facing Northern Iowa point guard Traci Amos last year," Hilke said.

Eastern is scheduled to host Drake's Lady Bulldogs Saturday at Lantz Gym starting at 5:15 p.m. The Bulldogs come into the contest with a 5-5 overall mark and 1-1 record in the Gateway Eastern's Michele Rogiers looks for a shot against Northern Iowa at Lantz Gym Thursday. Rogiers scored two points in the Lady Panthers' 74-69 victory.

Hagerty scores 25 points in Lady Panthers victory

By KEITH FARROLL
Staff writer

The Lady Panther basketball team, led by sophomore Carolyn Hagerty's career-high 25 points, salvaged their first win in the Gateway Conference Thursday as it downed a struggling Northern Iowa squad 74-69 at Lantz Gym.

"I thought Carolyn (Hagerty) played an outstanding game playing the inside post position, moving out to the wing position (back) to the post position I mean she played like a yo-yo in there and just kept her intensity and just kept playing hard," said Eastern head coach Barb Hilke.

Eastern, which is 4-6 overall and 1-2 in conference play and Northern Iowa, 1-9 overall and 0-2 in conference play, battled head-to-head throughout the entire game. Eastern led from the opening tip-off for the first two minutes of the contest before Northern took over. Northern Iowa guard Ann Miller scored 13 of her team high 25 points in the first half.

Northern Iowa had a 27-20 lead in the first half before the Lady Panthers put together a 12-0 run to regain the lead and forcing Northern Iowa to take a timeout with 4:32 left in the half. After the timeout, Miller took control by scoring the next six points for Northern Iowa making the score 36-34 in Northern Iowa's favor. Eastern did manage to come back to tie the game 38-38 at the half.

Hagerty bombed a three-point shot to start the scoring to give Eastern a 38-38 advantage. The Lady Panthers looked back from that point on and held the lead the entire half.

The Lady Panthers took advantage of Northern Iowa's sloppy ball handling half court to spark the 10-4 run in the first four minutes of the second half.

Northern Iowa played with a 10-0 run after the first four minutes, but was as close as five points in that half.

Hilke and her Lady Panthers credited the success of its win was from the intense practices this past week.

"(The practices) have been a lot more competitive, a lot more intense, we've gotten a lot better," Hilke said.

Senior Tracy Roller chipped in 10 points while junior Heather York put together a 13-point and 12-rebound performance. Freshman Renee grabbed nine boards and chipped in 10 points in her 18 minutes of play.

Although freshman Nicky Polk put high numbers on the board, almost single-handedly making

Panthers and Crusaders look to change direction

By KEN RYAN
Associate sports editor

The Eastern Illinois and the Valparaiso basketball teams are both headed in the same direction.

Down.

Both teams are riding losing streaks going into Saturday's 7:30 p.m. contest at Lantz Gym and both teams believe that with a little luck things might start to change.

The Panthers enter the game having dropped their previous four games after starting out the season 5-0, but head coach Rick Samuels said that he isn't too concerned at this point in the season.

"Our biggest problem has been that we have faced some pretty good teams all on the road (Missouri, Creighton and Nebraska)," Samuels said. "The kids have been playing hard and I think that we have been playing pretty well."

Valparaiso has had other problems. After starting out the season with a 3-2 record, the Crusaders have been dealt with a number of injuries and sicknesses.

Guards Lance Barker and sophomore Rob Cavanaugh have been hobbled with injuries and a number of other players have been out with the flu and head coach Homer Drew said that he can only hope that the team gets healthy quick.

"We have not had our players and that is the reason for our six-game losing streak," Drew said. "Two of our guards have been out, Lance Barker with a bad ankle and Rob Cavanaugh has a

Rowe questionable for Saturday

By KEN RYAN
Associate sports editor

After dropping four straight contests and having lost forward Rod McKinnis for the season, following orthoscopic surgery on his right knee, the last thing the Eastern basketball team needed was for anybody to get hurt. But as luck would have it, the Panthers' leading scorer, Steve Rowe, is questionable for Saturday night's 7:30 p.m. Mid-Continent Conference game with Valparaiso.

Rowe suffered an injury to his ankle during the first half of the Panthers' 72-65 loss to Wright State Wednesday night. Rowe went up for a shot and came down on one of the Raider's players feet.

Rowe sat out Thursday's practice, but he was in good toe injury.

"We also have the flu bug going around. We only had seven people at practice yesterday. When we were healthy, we were a competitive team. We started out 3-2."

The Crusaders are coming off a 74-45 loss to the Flames of Illinois-Chicago and are looking to find the win column once again against the Panthers. One person Valparaiso will look to is sophomore Jason Markworth, who has stepped up his play with all of the health problems surrounding the team.

Markworth was the Crusader's spirits and is optimistic about being ready for the game against Valparaiso.

"I stepped on somebody's foot," Rowe said. "It's sore right now, but I definitely think I will play Saturday."

The Panthers' basketball trainer, Lance McNamara, said that Rowe's status is pretty good and believes that they can get him ready for the game.

"At the present time (Thursday afternoon), he has swelling on the lateral side of his ankle," McNamara said. "We should have him ready by Saturday, but we have to play it by ear because the body reacts in different ways. If he feels strong enough along with my consensus, we will get him going."

Rowe is a pre-season First Team All-Mid-Continent selection, after leading the Panthers top scorer and rebounder during the loss. Pouring in 18 points and pulling down six rebounds. For the season, he is averaging 5.7 points per game and 2.4 rebounds per game while shooting 55 percent from the field.

Leading the way, however, for the 3-7 Crusaders is a member of last season's second team All-Conference squad, Tracy Gipson.

The junior guard, despite shooting 39 percent from the floor, is the top scorer on a team that averages 63 points per game. Gipson is averaging 16.6 points per game and is second on the team in rebounding at 5.4 per game. He is also top on the team in steals, at 2.1 per game.

Samuels said that the Crusaders are a team that can pose problems for teams in the Mid-Continent.

"They have had some injury problems this year," Samuels said. "They can play loose against us and they can give teams problems with their switching defenses. We will have to be emotionally alert and ready to play a team like them."

Valparaiso is not the only team with problems, as Eastern's leading scorer, Steve Rowe is questionable for Saturday night's game.

The senior guard sustained an ankle injury during the Panthers' 72-65 loss to Wright State Wednesday.

Samuels said that it is Eastern to change its fortunes.

"(The losing streak) is having an effect on the team," Samuels said. "But we make it a positive effect. We want to understand that we've got some good teams and we take care of a few things."

Rowe is Eastern's leading scorer, checking in at 14 points per game. If Rowe is unable to play, Samuels said that junior Eric West will replace him in the line-up.

West, along with Rowe, is Eastern's leading scorer in the loss to Wright State Wednesday. He scored a season high 15 points. He is averaging 8.7 points off of the bench and is 50 percent from the floor.

Barry Johnson and Carl will look to fill up the line-up. The two big men are the two and three top scorers on the team.

Johnson is averaging 15 points and 6.7 boards a game while Leib is standing at 10 points and 4.7 rebounds a game.

Eastern's veteran team, Drew fears the most about the Panthers squad.

"I've always liked Eastern," Drew said. "I picked them to finish second in the conference. Steve Rowe is very quick. He brings the ball up court. Johnson is an athletic player. Leib has done a good job and Olson can shoot those pointers. Once they get into conference play, they can be OK."
